

Apply Economics to Real-World Issues

About Us

As a leading global economic consulting firm, Compass Lexecon provides law firms, corporations, and government clients with critical insight into legal and regulatory proceedings, strategic decisions, and public policy debates.

Our experience and expertise apply to virtually any question of economics, in any context of the law or business. Our experts and staff are known for developing a thorough understanding of the issues that our clients face, relating those issues to relevant economic theory, supporting our analysis with solid and persuasive empirical evidence, and presenting our findings in an understandable manner.

Compass Lexecon provides expert economic advice on competition policy, antitrust, securities, intellectual property, accounting, international arbitration, valuation and financial analysis, bankruptcy and financial distress, derivatives and structured finance, class certification and other matters across a broad range of industries including securities and financial markets, telecommunications, energy and natural resources, transportation, and retail. Our clients include Fortune 500 corporations, major law firms, and governmental agencies.

Our Work

We provide expert economic advice related to competition, regulation, intellectual property and damages litigation in dozens of jurisdictions and across all industries.

Microsoft/Activision Merger

Situation: The proposed vertical merger between Microsoft and Activision was opposed by the FTC, which sought a preliminary injunction to block the merger while the administrative court process proceeded.

Our Role: Compass Lexecon was retained by the merging parties to provide economic analysis and expert testimony regarding the competitive effects and procompetitive efficiencies arising from Microsoft's proposed acquisition of Activision.

Outcome: Relying on the testimony of one of Compass Lexecon's experts, the judge denied the FTC's request for a preliminary injunction, allowing the companies to continue with the largest tech merger in history. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the decision in May 2025.

Bed Bath & Beyond Securities Fraud Suit

Situation: This case involved a securities class action on behalf of purchasers of Bed Bath & Beyond (BBBY) stock and call options (plaintiffs) who claimed that Ryan Cohen, an investor in BBBY engaged in a "pump and dump" scheme to manipulate BBBY's stock and option prices to allegedly inflate the prices of his holdings before his planned sale, which would enable him to earn massive profits.

Our Role: We were retained by counsel for Mr. Cohen to analyze market efficiency and other economic evidence relevant to class certification.

Outcome: Our expert demonstrated that the price, volume, and volatility movements leading up to and continuing during the Class Period were better explained as a "short squeeze." In September 2024, the court ruled in favor of Mr. Cohen and denied class certification.

Meta Antitrust Suit

Situation: A proposed class of Facebook users (plaintiffs) sought more than $50 billion in damages from Meta, claiming that Meta illegally acquired and maintained a monopoly in a purported personal social networking services market by deceiving users about Facebook's data collection and privacy practices. They argued that in a competitive market, Meta would be forced to pay users $5 a month to use their personal data.

Our Role: Compass Lexecon experts submitted testimony on the merits of plaintiffs' antitrust claims on behalf of Meta.

Outcome: In January 2025, a federal court ruled in favor of Meta and denied class certification.
